DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claim 1-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

No evidence has been found in the specifications to support the claim of a cellular phone although the radio unit as discussed in the specifications in paragraph 92 may be accessed by mobile cellular telephone broadcasts.

No evidence has been found in the specifications to support the limitation citing a cellular phone comprising “a controller that generates a first personal access number from said first subscriber identification information”. Firstly, subscriber identification information is not found and secondly, the actual act of generating a first personal access number from identification information has not been found.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claims 1-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Akiyama et al (US 4,680,785) (hereinafter referred to as 'Akiyama') in view of Le et al. (US 6,556,820) (hereinafter referred to as 'Le').

Akiyama teaches a phone comprising:

a first removable subscriber identification card, wherein said first card includes a memory that stores first subscriber identification information (portable identification device 4);

a card interface (card reader 5);

a controller that generates a first personal access number from said first subscriber identification (col. 2, lines 23-40); and a transmitter that transmits said first personal access number to a wireless communication device;

the phone further comprising a second removable subscriber identification, including second subscriber identification information;

the phone wherein the transmission of said first personal access number to said wireless communication system enable said phone to receive calls associated with said first subscriber information (col. 3, lines 1-15);

the phone wherein said first subscriber identification information includes a subscriber account number; and the phone wherein said transmitter is a spread spectrum transmitter.

Akiyama lacks the teaching of a cellular phone and a card having a microprocessor.

Le teaches a SIM card having a microprocessor for use with a cellular phone (col. 4, line 50-col. 5, line 7).

One of ordinary skill in the art would have readily recognized that providing the Akiyama invention with a cellular phone would have been beneficial for providing mobility to the phone user. Furthermore, one of ordinary skill in the art would have readily recognized that providing the Akiyama invention with a card having a microprocessor would have been beneficial for making the card multi-functioning and able to store large amounts of data. Therefore, it would have been obvious, at the time the invention was made, to modify the teachings of Akiyama with the aforementioned teaching of Le to increase the flexibility of the user when using the phone.

Conclusion

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Jamara A. Franklin whose telephone number is (571) 272-2389. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday through Friday 8:00am to 4:30pm.
